

Each stage's winner seeds the next; only the newly activated pathway gains are searched. Finalists at every stage must pass the perturbation and basin gates. Darker chips indicate less harness support.