

Computer-in-the-loop: test embedded control against the simulated body before transfer to the physical robot.